Poll Finds Bulk of Workers Feel Leaders Harming Unions

NEW YORK (NANA)—There are indications that union members are becoming more conscious of the fact the tactics and policies of their leaders are harming the unions and are inviting a hostile attitude that may result in the interests of organized labor.

A national survey conducted by Factory Management and Maintenance, a business publication, reveals that 66 percent of the workers interviewed think some top leaders have hurt the unions in the eyes of the public. Of these, 60 percent named John L. Lewis as the union leader who has hurt their cause most.

The runners-up were James C. Petrillo of the American Federation of Labor and C. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Their dubious distinctions were won on the basis of their demanding too much or calling strikes. The survey, by the way, was completed before the coal miners walked out.

See Communist Influence

Workers also feel the influence of Communism is prevalent. Some 22 percent believe Communists have too much influence in unions. If percent regard their influence as moderate, and only 21 percent think Communists have little or no influence. But 39 percent frankly don't know the extent of Red influence.

Contrasted with the wave of strikes that has plagued American industry and business since 1942, the opinion expressed by these workers of every four, or five percent, that their companies pay fair wages and that their opinion would suggest a rule of many strikes are contrary to the will of the workers.

An overwhelming majority of workers do not regard "secondary boycotts" as "costs." Only 21 percent affirm they would join members of their unions to refuse to handle or install parts made by non-union workers or workers in another union. This sentiment may be tested in causing strikes.

Favor Co-operation

Strikes could be reduced in number according to the poll. If labor leaders co-operated with management, played square and fair, and worked only in the interest of the workers.

Study Citizenship In Emire Scheme

LONDON, (CP)—Nationality experts of Britain and the dominions will meet here early in 1947 to discuss the application of the new agreement on nationality of the married women announced by the British government last week.

The effect of Canadian nationality laws on the British subject is under examination, government officials said.

Under the agreement, a British woman married to a foreigner will not lose her British citizenship unless she takes active steps to do so. Foreign women marrying British men will not acquire British citizenship automatically but may apply for it.

Under the Canadian Citizenship Act passed at the last session of parliament in 1946, women were given the right to decide their own nationality. A Canadian woman who marries a man of any other nationality will be able to retain her Canadian citizenship if she wishes.

One of the features of the act was that it provided for a distinctive Canadian citizenship. Under previous legislation Canadians could only be classified as British subjects.

Scientists to Hunt For 'Missing Link'

U. S. Coal Strike Affects Maritime Miners' Wage Bids

By John Bird

OTTAWA.—With reverberations of John L. Lewis' bitter fight in Canadian eyes, Ottawa specialists have turned their eyes to the maritime miners' wage bids and strike, if wage negotiations prove unsatisfactory.

Department of labor officials emphasized the strike authorization was not a hill at the height of late afternoon traffic. At the top of the hill the barrels, water, and coal were being loaded and the conference of the American strike greatly reduced traffic.

Extra police paid round-trip to a dozen workers would two hours to clean up the foot-deep layer of coal.

Expect Pressure For A-Bomb Data

LACE SUCCESS, N.Y. (AP)—The demand for foreign military data by the United States supply full information on atomic weapons gave rise Wednesday to the possibility of increased pressure to strip the secrecy from the deadly bomb.

Mr. Molotov's statement before the United Nations political committee Tuesday implied that Russia would want to know in connection with its four-point program for disarmament—how many bombs the United States has, where they are, and how they are being produced and future plans.

It is usually a cold interpretation to cover everything except the actual facts of the matter. It is usually a cold interpretation to cover everything except the actual facts of the matter.

Ask $2,000 Tax Exemption

A resolution on income tax adopted at the Wednesday session of the Alberta Social Credit League would recommend the distinction of a $2,000 exemption presently enjoyed by certain men in public office by extending it to all citizens of Canada.

The preamble to the Beaver River constituency resolution observed that the said members had found the burden of income tax too heavy for themselves, and so, unlike the private citizen, they were in a position to give themselves a tax-exempt salary increase of $2,000.

It claimed that all over the country the same burden exists but rested more heavily on the people with lower incomes, and that in a democratic country the law should cover all citizens with no difference of position as to members of parliament or clerics. It stressed that the first $2,000 on incomes should be exempt from income taxation.

95 Fire Calls

During October

Ninety-five fire calls were responded to by city firemen during October according to a report received Thursday from the city fire department. Of this number fires were extinguished with no less than 16 false alarms.

Only four days out of the 31 went by without fire calls being put in. Oct. 31 was the busiest day with 11 calls being put in, three of them false alarms, and six grass fires, one a truck on fire and the other a hayrack.

During the month short circuits in cars and trucks caused the largest number of fires, while cigarette butts had second place.

Crowded Convention Sessions Hear Premier, Leaders Speak

Free Democracy Social Credit A; League Speakers Call for Vigilance

HON. A. H. HOOKE

Packed to overflowing with more than 400 visitors, delegates and friends attending the 12th annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League, the large audience in the Macdonald hotel banquet room Wednesday evening heard two of the party's chief speakers, E. G. Hansell, MP for Macleod, and Hon. A. J. Hooke, provincial secretary, sound a rallying note in two lengthy addresses.

IN COMMON, both speakers sounded a warning that forces of evil were afoot in Canada and that the Social Credit movement was wrestling not with blood but with principles and the ultimate purpose was to destroy democratic liberty and to replace it with centralized authoritarianism.

Mr. Hansell, basing his talk on a Biblical text said the Social Credit movement was wrestling not with blood but with principles and the ultimate purpose was to destroy democratic liberty and to replace it with centralized authoritarianism.

He spoke of the political and economic philosophies that would destroy the life and the future of the nation, and that it was the duty of the Social Credit movement to stand against them.

Chamber Unit

Establishment of a better business climate within the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, was given approval at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce council in the Corona hotel Wednesday noon.

Purpose of the division is to supply business information to any members of the chamber as desired.

A. L. BURROWS was appointed to represent the Edmonton chamber at a meeting of the British Board of Trade on Dec. 4. Mr. Burrows will address the group.

Many Parcels for Britain

Yule Mail Overseas Heavier This Year

Christmas mail overseas, to the United Kingdom and Europe is "considerably up" over war years, according to Herbert W. Gregory, inspector of postal service, Edmonton.

MAIN REASON for this increase, thinks Mr. Gregory, is that more visitors and emigrants now returned from overseas to civil service. Have not forgotten the hospitality shown them while they were in England and are acknowledging that friendship and welcome extended them, by sending Christmas parcels, containing food, clothing, and extras to their loved ones in Britain.

Another reason is that war brides now living in comparative luxury in Britain, have sent parcels home to mother and sister in London, Bristol or Edinburgh.

ANOTHER important cause for this increase, is that people are very conscious of the food shortage in Britain and Europe and have made special efforts this year to do their part to relieve suffering.

"With the peak reached this year," Mr. Gregory said, "we are confident of establishing a record in parcel post to Britain." Monday, Nov. 23 was the deadline for overseas parcels to Britain and Europe. After that date no assurance can be given that the parcels will arrive at their destination in time for Christmas.

"NO SHIPPING trouble is anticipated," Mr. Gregory said, "and the congestion of former years at ports and in shipping agency will not be felt this year."

Computation between Oct. 1 and Nov. 1, 1945, revealed that parcels were up by 4,200, he said. As usual, the post office urged early mailing of Christmas parcels and Mr. Gregory said, "Not only early in date, but so to the hour of mailing also. Where the greater volume of mail is received early in the day, greater facility in getting it out to the homes can be experienced by post office personnel."

HE WARNED against placing mail on top of receivers, for the drivers to pick up. "The post office can accept no responsibility for mail left in this way," he said.

Every year at Christmas, between 400 and 500 additional parcels are taken on, he said. And so, if there are cases where mail is delivered to the wrong address, the understanding of the public is requested.

Retention of mail by any individual not intended for them is a criminal offence, Mr. Gregory said. "Citizens are asked to return mail, incorrectly delivered to them, to the post office or carrier as soon as possible."

NO INSURANCE can be obtained for food parcels as can be obtained for clothing, addressed overseas. The customary time "gift parcels-uninsured" is still needed on such mail, he said.

Report is Made On Veteran Survey

In order to obtain information needed to guide the future progress of the Canadian rehabilitation program, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics carried out a survey of 6,000 representative veterans last July.

RESULTS of the survey show:

- (1) 75 percent of veterans obtained a job within a month after discharge or completion of training.
- (2) Of this number 86 percent got a job within two months.
- (3) 42 percent were self-employed.
- (4) About half of all unemployed veterans have no occupation or trade.
- (5) More than 60 percent of veterans were married.
- (6) More than 50 percent were living in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia than had enlisted from these provinces.

PRINCE EDWARD Island veterans population was the same as the enlistment figure, while the remaining provinces showed a decrease of veterans as compared to enlistments. British Columbia alone has an increase of more than 16 percent of veterans as compared to enlistments for that province.

most that was ever launched," he continued.

The ship had equality for the hands who worked in the boiler room along with those who occupied the bridge and promenade deck.

About Social Credit critics he said:

CNR Passenger Officer Visitor

Marking his first official tour of western territory since his promotion recently, Wm. Stapleton, Winnipeg passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways and Canadian National Steamships, was an Edmonton visitor Wednesday. While here he conferred with H. J. Duguid, recently appointed district passenger agent, A. F. Eagle and other CNR officials.

Mr. Stapleton expressed pleasure at once again visiting Edmonton and was impressed with the growth and business activity here. He plans to make periodic trips to the west. He left Wednesday evening for Saskatoon.

S. C. Convention

theory propounded by Darwin in his Descent of Man, saying it was a philosophy of extermination for mankind. It was the same as Hitlerism, and there was danger of the world once more gravitating toward its adoption.

PEOPLE were becoming too accustomed to being directed by their governments, he contended, and this was a symptom of a dangerous carelessness.

Social Credit was not merely a political conception but a way of life.

In lauding the principles of the Alberta Bill of Rights he said "it is a bill which tells the government what to do."

In speaking of the present monetary system he said there were forces of darkness who directed their activities behind the protection of closed doors.

HE SPOKE of the great responsibility at present being shouldered by Social Credit leaders, urging party adherents to fight on to national victory, warned them to a close watch of opposing forces in their own communities.

Second speaker of the evening, Mr. Hooker, he could find no reason why Canada could not have the new order so repeatedly promised during the war.

Factories were running at capacity, industry generally had struck new high levels, there was no problem of unemployment, and people were in better health.

Money loosened, and markets for Canada's surplus were found by dropping them on Germany.

HE, THEN compared the present tendency toward inflation, the rearmament in industry, the artificial scarcities, unemployment and the continental paralysis caused by widespread and frequent strikes.

There was not much to choose between the two old line parties, he declared.

"Who you choose any one of the old line parties to give the wishy-washy type of socialism," he went on. "This, he said, was reflected through the press, the bureaucracy, he had no complaints for the K.C.P., either. They were the K.C.P. type and the Labor-Progressives were the 'red' but type of revolutionary socialism."

"NO MATTER which you choose you are heading down the road to serfdom," said Mr. Hooker.

The standard of living of certain members of trade unions in England at the peak of that country's difficulties in 1945 was considerably higher than that of workers engaged in the same industry in the U.S.S.R., he said, adding that those in Russia did not have the right to strike.

The U.S.S.R. was the only country in the world which professed to be operating under Marxian socialism, he said, but he questioned the value of any political system where the government refused information to other countries.

HE CHIDED people who advanced excuses for not taking an interest in the public life of their country.

"So long as we are bound and tied foot to this monetary system we will have the same old thing in different doses," he charged, criticizing the federal government's record.

The lure of economic freedom came in many guises and at present existed in the country's industrial situations. There a person could abandon personal responsibility and be cared for in every way, except being given the privilege of leaving the institution.

IN CLOSING he urged all to take up the fight with Social Credit to join the crusade to establish the rights and freedom of the people in Canada.

About 45 persons were seated at the head table. Three delegates journalized that there were types of passengers aboard.

"There is the deck chair group—you know the ones I mean, they sit in the deck chairs and say how the ship should be run."

Legal and constitutional barriers to the Social Credit theory were viewed as reefs by the premier.

"I SAY WE HAVE reefs, we have had them in the past and they will be there in the future," he said.

He said a rising tide of public opinion was placing itself behind the Social Credit movement.

"It is said the storms are caused by too great a concentration of hot air," the premier continued, "when too much sailors at Ottawa then a storm breaks."

"Storms occur as at CCF conventions, or in an editor's office," he said, bringing a round of laughter from the audience.

THE PROGRESS of the party required frequent recharging to avoid shoals and reefs upon which it could be wrecked to the great satisfaction of its enemies.

In this way Social Credit was different to all other parties in that they set the course of their ship for a year ahead, and with nothing more occupy the crew they should leave and holidays allowing their vessel to founder around as best it could.

"If you can see the end of the week the end of the year you are lucky," continued the premier, "we are driving in a fast-moving age

Jealousy Ruins Many Marriages

Probably there is no other thing that ruins as many marriages as jealousy. The men and women who are unfortunate enough to have wives and husbands who are possessed by the green-eyed monster never have any peace or happiness or liberty. Their lives are made a torment to them by their being watched, spied upon and suspicious, and no matter how innocent they may be, or how great their integrity, they are kept in an attitude of being criminals who have to perpetually defend themselves.

THE HUSBAND of a jealous wife cannot speak to another woman without his wife believing he is having an affair with her. Nor can he dance with a pretty girl at a party, or show that he enjoys the conversation of an entertaining woman at a dinner party, without having to listen to a diatribe from his wife, sailed down with tears, when he gets home.

A jealous husband never believes his wife goes to market to buy a chicken. He is sure it is a cover for a rendezvous with the butcher. And the things he accuses her of doing would make any lady of the streets look like a model of virtue.

After having spent years in trying to convince their jealous spouses that they were not the accused creatures that they are accused of being, most husbands and wives just give up the fight and sink into a poor covered slough where both their heads to the venom that is continually poured over them, or else they get divorced.

For heretofore there has been no known cure for jealousy, but great and marvelous are the discoveries being made by research workers these days, and one of them claims that he has found a remedy for it and he presents, for free, to this column. He says it is to put yourself in the place of the jealous one and try to find out the rate of a 31 minute.

Elizabeth Woodward Says . . .

Dear Miss Woodward: "I'm a spending five of the seven dollars freshman in college and having a little trouble with my mother over the subject of money. I get my weekly allowance of $1 from her and she thinks I'm extravagant. I don't. But I do think I should take a girl friend out once a week. However, on my allowance--and in these days--$1.45 is deducted for transportation. I have five bucks left. And that's not enough to take a girl to the movies and get something to eat. I've worked during the summer and have collected a nice pile of War Bonds and have a sizeable bank account. But my mother will not let me touch it for dating. Since it is money I earned myself, I think I ought to be able to add to mother's allowance. But she won't let me. I don't want to let my mother know how hard you worked to earn that money. She knows how hard you're going to have to work to earn some money to replace what you draw out of the bank.

But there's a way to live. Have dates that don't cost too. And have dates that take, though only when you can afford it.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRD

Every parent, as soon as the weather becomes sharp and disagreeable, has a constant argument with her children about the clothes they should wear. Out of doors children get warm so quickly, because they walk or run fast, that they are often uncomfortable in the garments the chilly, house-bound mother, considers to be imperative.

IT'S A GOOD idea, when winter comes, to make a liberal use of an outdoor thermometer. In a nice warm house neither parent nor child can imagine the temperature outside. But each can check at the thermometer and read what the thermometer says. And the child of a weight of garment that will be suitable to the weather.

With the temperature at 60 degrees, most children are comfortable in cotton clothes and a fall-weight coat or sweater. When the temperature dips twenty degrees, they will need woolen clothes with their fall coats.

When it goes below the freezing point, then a fall coat is not sufficient and a winter-weight garment is demanded. A sweater under this coat will be in order as the temperature dips down.

As for overcoats, rubbers and raincoats, they are often the bones of contention between parents and children. "Who wants to be the one who is the outraged child's complaint. No parent wants to force on her child a means of dressing which is different from all other children's."

Yet, no mother can find any legitimate excuse for allowing a child to sit out in the rain or snow, get his clothes wet and then shiver and become ill-fitting, and become chilled and catch cold from his carelessness. She is right to have her privilege to decide so important a question.

PERHAPS she can give the child a better viewpoint if she reminds him that protective garments are not designed just to prevent him from getting chilled, but to keep the child the privilege of being a real adventurer in all kinds of weather. With a raincoat and rubbers or overboots, he can trample in wet leaves, or mounds of mud or banks of snow. He needn't mind getting wet. The elements, and so they are really capable of providing him with more fun and freedom than he could get if he were kept in a cocoon. Let the School Child, "may be" by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Which is more difficult, the play of the declarer or the defender? Generally speaking I believe that the defender's play is more important, but the opportunities for exceptionally clever defensive play do not arise frequently.

If the defender keeps a good count on the hand and plays carefully, he will get all his tricks.

In today's hand there was an opportunity for an alert defensive play. On the very first trick, when East had to play his king of diamonds, he should have played his queen.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

For a healthy smile like Actress Jane Harker's, and correct proportions, too, it's better to eat food of good nutritional quality than to put the emphasis on quantity.

IT IS ENTIRELY possible to be undernourished with a full stomach and it is rather usual to be anemic with too many pounds. So many of the items which fill up and pile the weight on fail to provide the minerals and proteins and vitamins essential to vibrant health.

INTERESTING experiments have been made in the feeding of animals. For instance, a group of rats was fed a diet extremely rich in minerals and vitamins and animal proteins but deficient in calories. In other words the rats were fed a smaller amount of food during life than would be considered normally adequate. They did not grow so large in stature but they enjoyed normal good health in adult life and were vigorous. The mice in this group lived longer than their natural expectancy.

I do not suggest that we cut our calorie intake to such a low level but rather, if we choose between the kind of food we eat and the amount, it might be wise to take quality first. Experiments seem to prove conclusively that truly adequate nourishment in excess of elements will delay aging and produce better adult health.

IN THIS DAY of rising costs, when many people must cut their grocery bill in some way, the suggestion should be obvious first and the filler-uppers afterwards. It is possible to get the main nutrients, health protecting items and then fill up with one of the carbohydrates.

Don't make the mistake of filling your stomach to a comfortable or uncomfortable degree and then believing that you have taken care of health. Fruits and vegetables, not Laverne.
